WHERE DREAMS ARE BORN: THE MONTGOMERY CAMPUS

The Montgomery Campus, in the heart of downtown Montgomery, Alabama, hosts more than 4,300 dedicated Troy University students. The Montgomery Campus is one of the most diverse campuses in the Southeast. We are distinct in our service to the "non-traditional" adult learner. With a variety of distance delivery methods, the majority of classes are taught in the evenings and on weekends. This uniquely accommodates working students with families and other commitments. While a majority of courses are taught in campus classrooms, "working adults" can also take courses via the Internet and television. These flexible course options combined with faculty assistance, allow students to work on completing degree programs while enjoying life outside the classroom.

Our success serving non-traditional students largely results from the care and attention faculty and staff devote to each individual. Many Troy University faculty and staff completed their degree programs while balancing job and family responsibilities themselves, so they understand the demands adult students face pursuing higher education.
